LETTERS FROM OUR LISTENERS

The following is the first sample of a new, and hopefully regular feature of the Folio, Letters From Our Listeners We hope to print more in the future, so please write and let us know what you re thinking

Oct 24, 1971

Dear Kathy Dobkin

More I listen to WBAI the more I suspect the atmosphere must be fundamentally hostile to anything like THE LONG RUSSIAN WINTER I remember recently hearing one of the wise-guy announcers referring to some Beethoven, I think it was, as "punishment music." I have complained several times to Goodman, and finally got an answer to, in effect, get lost A few years ago I used to be able to turn the radio on when I got up and listen to almost everything until I went to bed Now, I'm lucky if I can survive the rock-pop-jazz long enough to get at an occasional news or public affairs program, and the music is almost totally absent. To me rock-pop-jazz is not music, only irritating noise Gorman and his Baba Ramass are juvenile nonsense, as are all the other personality programs without exception Julius Lester used to be good when he wrote in the Guardian, and he still is when he does Stagalee, but to name his thing the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution is a very crummy hype I think I see what Goodman is up to, but trying to compete with commercial hype stations for the juvenile idiot trade doesn t seem to make much sense, in any context I can imagine for WBAI

I am thinking of phoning in some Wed evening on Goodman's report and inviting listeners who agree with me to get in touch and we might be able to put some heat on the management To some extent I think the problem might be one of a homosexual takeover, as in film, fiction, and some other media like hairdressing I read almost no recent fiction, and haven't seen 5 movies in ten years, so I hate to see one of my last sources go down that drain. The things that interest homosexuals do not, evidently, interest me, and I do not like to have their trivia forced on me. Otherwise, I have no interest pro or con in homosexuals or their so-called problems, self-pity, and injustice collecting

If you should have occasion to pass the time with anyone from the WBAI news department I would like you to pass along an idea for a news report kicker. I notice that the New York Times suppresses, falsifies, or underplays a great many important, front page stories. So as a little item in the evening news report there could be something called "News the Times Wishes Hadn't Happened." It would include the story, then what the Times did or did not do, and a taped phone conversation, if available, with a Times spokesman commenting, alibiing, or whatever It is my fond hope that this would put the Times in a very uncomfortable position The squirming would be very interesting to observe.

There could also be a weekly or semi monthly program consisting of the same, but a small item every evening would be more effective, I think

Again thank you

John Haviland

Louis Schweitzer
1899-1971

In 1959 Louis Schweitzer gave WBAI-FM to the Pacifica Foundation. For that gift alone those of us who have worked or who do or will work here and those who listen should remember him with gratitude and fondness. He was one of the very few individuals I've ever known who really did believe in free speech in practice. He put his energy, his money, and his reputation in the service of his First Amendment ideals. When Louis Schweitzer owned WBAI he broadcast—live—the entire proceedings of the Communist Party Convention, though he was not personally in sympathy with the ideology or goals of the Party. This was not a popular thing to do in 1958. He did it because he thought the Communist Party had a right to be heard. After WBAI-Pacifica broadcast the now famous (or, if you wish, infamous) poem by a student of Leslie Campbell, Louis Schweitzer, who was active in Jewish philanthropy in New York City, took a lot of abuse and pressure from his friends due to his connection with the station. Needless to say he did not in the least like the poem or the statement which followed it, but stuck by the station and defended its right to broadcast such statements. The threat of being falsely labeled a Communist or of being made into a lampshade never made him act on the urge to censor.

More than once flack from internal WBAI disputes fell on him—on one occasion publicly and, I think, unfairly. He never gave up on the station, treating its lapses and failures as would an indulgent grandfather, while basking proudly but privately in its successes.

It is customary in a eulogy to say that the deceased was a warm, friendly man. Lou Schweitzer really was. He always had a joke to tell—usually one containing an ironic twist or a gentle moral observation. He cared about the people he knew and about many he didn't: the derelicts, the junkies, the ex-convicts, and the legally-presumed-innocent indigents who, for the lack of a few dollars bail or access to a telephone, rot in jail awaiting trial. Many of these men and women were helped by the Vera Institute of Justice which he founded and supported.

Our society—even that part we regard as "right-thinking" or "hip" or "progressive" or whatever—is changing, and generally not for the better. People—including you and I—are getting harder, more neurotic, less truly compassionate. Lou Schweitzer was the last of a kind: a wealthy man who was not scarred by the getting of money nor scared by having it, who liked other people, and who used his wealth along with his creativity and empathy to bring out the best in the people and institutions he touched. He never tried to buy immortality; there are no plaques bearing his name on the WBAI church. He got his pleasure from watching, or in our case, listening to the effect of his contributions.

When Louis Schweitzer bought WBAI it was an "easy listening" station in the Mantovanni tradition. He and his associates made the station into a unique, humorous blend of classical and folk music, jazz, satire, political, and public affairs programs, including some from Pacifica. Many listeners still remember it. He decided to give the station to Pacifica—or so the story goes—after the station began to get too successful—meaning too many commercials—during the 1959 newspaper strike. After he gave WBAI to Pacifica, he continued to help the station financially and in other ways—substantially at first, then less and less as the years went by. He was proud of the fact that within ten years WBAI-Pacifica grew from zero subscribers to over 20,000 to become the strongest of the Pacifica stations, and, in the past few years, became almost completely independent of his help.

Those of us who knew him will miss him very much. For me his death was like loosing my grandfather for the third time. For you, the listener/subscriber who never knew him, I hope that the occasion of Louis Schweitzer's death will cause you to reflect that no natural law requires there to be a Pacifica station in New York City. That there is, and that it is strong is a measure of Louis Schweitzer's generosity and of his life-long commitment to the practice of free expression.

—Larry Josephson

STATION NOTES

When I took over the job of Program Director I felt two criticisms of the station most acutely. The first from our listeners. Many people complained that in the last year or so they felt bombarded by rhetoric all the time. (That criticism I point to especially because I heard it most frequently and for me it has become a kind of shorthand.) Rhetoric. Rhetoric or blah, blah, blah, as someone said. The second criticism came from the staff which I have been working with for almost 3 years.

The staff was even more articulate in its negativeness. "The station sounds like shit." We felt a lack of communication among ourselves and a sense that the station had broken itself down into a number of warring fiefdoms.

Sometimes we were defensive. Me too. What about the marathon reading of War And Peace, what about the Free Music Store, what about the Attica coverage.

I wanted to address myself to both those objections to WBAI. Because this is a big job, I said to myself, warring fiefdoms must be related to rhetoric-shit. Killing two birds with one stone. So in the style of a newly appointed bureaucrat I called meetings. Members of the staff would come to me all day long one at a time. "Another meeting?" "Well if you think we sound like shit then come to the meeting."

At the meeting I said, "The problem is us, we are the problem. We have to talk to one another." So we did. And we created FRIDAY DECEMBER 24 - SATURDAY JANUARY 1. All the departments got together with lists of their best archive (old) programs and worked out a series of theme days. We chose programs that use language not as an automatic signal that makes us all twitch together. But programs that use language and tape as a means of improvising new thoughts and movements. The week includes a History of Western Civilization in Music. It opens with a complete reading of Herman Melville's Moby Dick. (See page 10).

However that week (eight days) sounds to you, I don't really care so much. What I care about is keeping us talking to each other to create a creative atmosphere. (RHETORIC!)

2. YET ANOTHER MEETING, THIS TIME CALLED CONSCIOUSNESS-RAISING. Why was the atmosphere not as creative as it should be in this progressive avant-garde revolutionary FREE SPEECH institution? Why the malaise? I don't know for sure. But I have a lot of experience in seeing people (women, actually) at odds with each other, stifled in their competitiveness, begin to communicate and support each other and suddenly you have books, college courses, paintings, songs. Is it possible to apply the principles of women's liberation consciousness raising to a mixed group of relatively advantaged people? Liza Cowan thought so and called the first staff CR session. And we found out quickly that in fact we had been oppressing each other. That the scarcity of paying jobs and air time had engendered an uncongenial atmosphere. Volunteers were not welcome really. Only the toughest . . . those who stuck it out no matter what . . . became producers. We were working on the theory that talent is demonstrated only when one has survived the most stringent initiation rituals. (Remember masculinity is proved by bloody ugly puberty rituals.) Well I know there is another theory we might work from. The talent is found out and cultivated in rich soil good friends and solicitous criticism. WARNING. I don't mean cliquish camaraderie and back slapping. We had that and found it self-serving and unproductive of the best possible programs. Let's face it I don't know what creates geniuses, but it cannot be an institutional goal to create genius. Genius is freaky. But it is a proper institutional goal to get the best out of everyone.

3. The January 1st Ring Cycle broadcast constitutes a break with tradition for WBAI. We used to spend Washington's Birthday listening to Wagner, but, for a variety of reasons, including the fact that Washington's Birthday isn't "observed" on his "Birthday" any longer and no one even knows when it's supposed to be, we've started a new "tradition." Georg Solti, who conducted this year's selected performances, will introduce the operas and comment.

This is a rather classical month for music on WBAI and if you enjoy that sort of thing you should also listen for our recording of the Concentus Musicus of Vienna and our late-month broadcast of All of the Mahler Symphonies.

4. Deloris Costello, who has been producing Black Awareness for two years and who found a considerable black audience when she substituted for Paul Gorman's Lunchpail this summer, will now be on every Wednesday at noon with T. C. B. (Taking Care of Business).

5. THE LIFE OF THE MIND, produced and coordinated by Larry Josephson, is a new series of talks, lectures, debates, and discussion which will focus on analysis and introspection rather than polemic or rhetoric. (Larry mimics you.) This month we will hear from B. F. Skinner (Friday, December 16 at 11 p.m.), George Wald (Thursdays, December 8, 16, and 23 plus January 6 at 10:15 p.m.), and the First Annual J. Bronowski Festival (Fridays, December 3, 10, 17, and 24 at 2 p.m.). Larry is in the process of setting up permanent contacts with sources of "programs of ideas" such as universities and colleges, and social and intellectual organizations. Literally anyplace where lectures, debates, or discussions are held. If you know of such an organization, or of a specific lecture that would be highly interesting to WBAI's audience, call Larry Josephson at the station so that we can make arrangements to record it. (If he's not here leave a message.)

6. OOZ is our experiment in children's radio. It has no set form or content and attempts anything that will increase children's involvement in radio or expand conventional concepts of children's entertainment. There have been programs with children calling in to play and participate in artist-conceived word and sound games; abstract sound compositions; sequences of real children interacting with real parents; programs produced and performed by young people; and simple directions broadcast to construct simple musical instruments using cardboard and rubberbands. (See page 14)

7. John Lithgow has joined the Drama and Literature Department. Most recently he directed The Abduction from the Seraglio by Mozart (1971 Princeton Opera Association); The Magistrate by Pinero and Bareloot in the Park (1970 Bucks County Playhouse); The Way of the World by Congreve (1970 McCarter Theater); and Much Ado About Nothing for the McCarter in 1969. Previously he had directed another Shakespeare play, As You Like It for them in 1968. This month he will present a radio production of that play for us. John is also an actor. He played the role of John Hartnup in a film, Dealing, which is soon to be released. And a lot of other roles, but this list is getting too long. Let's face it he's experienced and terrific and we're glad he's here. And he will continue to produce Under the Gun, a regular program of improvisational madness (Fri., 12/10, 8:00 PM).

12/10, 8:00 PM).

8. Neal Conan's Red Beans and Rice has been moved from Fri. to Mon. 11:00 PM.

9. Because of the many holidays this month our printer could not promise to get the January Folio to you on time. Therefore, we have included the week of January 1-6 in this month's Folio.

Nanette Rainone

Dear Free Music Store Fans:

Reading last month's letter (and this is not going to get to be a habit), it occurred to me that maybe some of you are new subscribers and don't know about BAI's FREE MUSIC STORE. The idea is that we do all these things with an audience (you, your friends, people who look familiar, people you've never seen before, others.) That's why we're not only throwing the time at you (9:00 P.M.) but the place.

Which brings up an important subject. As of Folio press time, we have not yet decided on the December weekend location. Wednesday nights will continue in Studio C, but for the weekend location, stay tuned.

That's all for now.

SPECIAL WEEK

A week of thoughtful programs, classical programs, idea programs, Mensch programs—programs for listeners who have an extra bit of time to spend with WBAI. We'll begin this special week with a complete (virtually non-stop) reading of Herman Melville's MOBY DICK, starting on Christmas eve and continuing through Christmas day. Then, Monday through Friday, you'll be hearing some of the deepest and most timeless selections we could find in our archives, as well as a sort of History of Western Civilization in Music. Program series like Transformation of a Man by Baba Ram Dass and Beethoven's late quartets will be heard pretty much all at once and in their entirety. Friday night will focus on the Military and War, with a sequence of five programs from the Public Affairs and News Depts. Finally, on New Year's Day, we'll sign on with Richard Wagner's Ring Cycle and devote the whole day to a broadcast of those four epic operas. The News, War Summary, Extra, In the Beginning, and midnight programs will remain more or less at their regular times, but otherwise it's a special week, and you'll hear what we hope will be an alternative to the holiday season's usual dose of drivel and mawkishness. Listen, if you can.

MOBY DICK

On December 2, 1970 WBAI began a four and a half day marathon reading of Leo Tolstoy's master work of fiction, War and Peace. This broadcast involved one hundred and seventy four readers, took three months to produce, and was concluded by actor Morris Carnovsky. The reading of War and Peace is now history. While it has become in some people's minds one of the most intense and satisfying periods of radio listening, in the minds of others, it is thought of as a gimmick, show biz, unnecessary, unlistenable.

On July 29, 1971 we began a reading of the Pentagon Papers, the secret documents originally published by the New York Times and the Washington Post. This broadcast and accompanying commentaries was concluded some two and a half days later by Senator Mike Gravel.

On December 24, 1971 at 7.15 P.M., Christmas eve, WBAI will begin a thirty hour, continuous reading of Moby Dick, the epic American novel by Herman Melville. The conclusion will be at midnight of Christmas day.

The question of American literary inferiority is one that has plagued our culture and our artists. It is not that we have produced nothing of literary merit but rather that our tradition has been covered by years of bad books and inconsequential writers. One can make the case that for our large population we have produced only a scant number of influential writers, and indeed there is truth to that. But we should look at what we have done, not to support the American Myth of Greatness or to look unnecessarily with pride upon our past, but only to have a somewhat accurate notion of what significant literature we have generated. Moby Dick is an American book, and it is a great book, and it is going to be read aloud.

We are using the marathon to provide a form which permits the work to remain an organic whole, the structure of its conception, the structure the artist intended it to have. We are presenting the work, plain and simple as if one were sitting down with the book, becoming totally involved, and reading it to its conclusion. Historically, the marathon has been the device used by BAI for raising money, and opening up the station in a completely free way. Using this form the novel will flow throughout the twenty-four hour day cycle, spinning a thread through all schedules, all life styles, all listening patterns, touching everyone's life, and hopefully involving all those who are touched by it. There are day people and there are night people and no matter which you are you can listen and maybe even cross the boundary of your normal pattern by staying up all night or all day. Only the marathon can provide that time thread affording you the opportunity to listen at 3 A.M., 11 P.M. or Noon. The various hours of the day provide a different sort of receptiveness as well. When listening at 3 A.M. one perceives the work after the city has quieted, after most people have gone to sleep, after you are too tired to do much else than listen peacefully to the radio.

or The Whale

One then raises the question of programming. What kind of programming is it, is it good, is it worthwhile? When trying to determine what is the best programming possible in the field of literature it seems most logical and most productive to provide the best literature we have available to us; to present it in a way we believe will be well received by our audience and then to hope that it works. What is better in terms of literature than one of the greatest novels ever written, War and Peace, or the epic hunt for the great white whale, Moby Dick? We are offering the best, and that, in part, is our purpose.

What then do we have when combining the marathon form and a great piece of literature read aloud? We have an entire community of people all in their homes, rooms, and apartments, sitting and listening to each other as we pass the book electronically from one hand to the next. The family tradition of reading aloud is the real origin of this program. For just as BAI functions as a free speech radio station, an electronic soap box, so too do we now function as a family of listeners and readers, including those people who do not celebrate Christmas, who do not relate to it, either in its present commercial form or its original religious form. For in the midst of all the merriment, all the getting together, all the extended commercialism there are people who do not want the holidays, yet the holidays happen and cannot be totally ignored. The entire culture is geared up for the Eves, Christmas and New Year's. To this culturally defined partying and seasoned joviality Moby Dick is an alternative. One can even feel the rite of Christmas while withdrawing from the traditional means of enjoying the feeling. Again, an alternative. For people who are alone, and for people who are in groups there seems no more memorable, lovely, yet satisfying way of spending the eve and the day of Christmas.

And finally, this marathon production is unique in and of itself. For while watching a famous actor perform an equally famous role, is excitement of one kind, much like listening to Dustin Hoffman or William F. Buckley reading War and Peace —a greatness of a kind; there is also the special, more unique pleasure of watching people, all kinds of people reaching their own pinnacle of perfection. And this radio program, the reading of Moby Dick, will be that sort of event: A reading by listeners for listeners.

In addition to the straight text there will be Melville scholars analyzing the book from various perspectives; they will talk of psychological, political, social, and moral interpretations, and certainly much of real merit and insight will be said. Yet, the burden of success is on those of you who will be reading and those of you who will be listening. You pay the station's bills, you support the station year after year, and it is you who will be reading. This is the marathon not asking for money; this is the marathon of listener reader; this is our present to you.

Milton Hoffman
